Mayor Pavia Announces Infrastructure Improvements

Mayor Pavia announces extensive road and sidewalk improvements to be taking place throughout the City during the next several months. According to Director of Operations Ernie Orgera, street resurfacing and sidewalk reconstruction has already begun and these road and sidewalk improvements will greatly enhance these access ways for vehicles and pedestrians. Mr. Orgera anticipates the completion of these improvements on or around the end of November and that residents will be very pleased with the end result.

Mayor Pavia also announces the construction of the Stamford Urban Transitway (SUT) Phase II. Stamford Urban Transitway ("SUT"), a large federally funded project, is one of the largest on-going new roadway construction projects in the State, and provides a direct link from the Transportation Center to Elm Street. The first phase of the project was completed in 2011, and certain Intelligent Transportation Systems ("ITS") work was completed in 2012. The second phase of this SUT project is scheduled to begin in August and will be ongoing during the next two (2) years. Several other on-going roadway improvement/reconstruction projects are also under way including projects to reconstruct south end streets south of the SUT.

Additionally, there will be manual traffic control at all locations during construction.
